EvoMusArt Exhibition in connection with Conference Reception

On Monday evening at 19.30 coaches will depart from the conference venue to the Artpool Art Research Centre for a reception held in conjunction with the EvoMusArt Exhibition.

Process Revealed is a new venture for the European Workshop on Evolutionary Music and Art involving 18 works from eight countries. The exhibition includes video and audio works, generative software programmes, installations and live performance. The objective is to explore some of the processes and the relationships between score, image, text and sound, and to examine the complex relationship between time-based and static or visual art forms as they converge and mutate one into the other. Focusing on the gaps between output and process, ideas and experience, between abstract concepts and their relation to the tangible, process revealed considers the generative, the algorithmic and the evolved in relation to analytical, performative possibilities.

Organised by EvoMusArt chairs, Penousal Machado and Juan Romero, the exhibition has been curated by Janis Jefferies, Professor of Visual Arts, Goldsmiths College, and Tim Blackwell, Department of Computing, Goldsmiths College. The Process Revealed Exhibition is hosted by Artpool, a unique research centre and gallery which has presented new trends in art, and helped sponsor artistic tools and resources since the late 1970s. The archive and library house primarily documents relating to the Hungarian avant-garde movements of the 1970s and 1980s as well as sources of international trends of the past 30 years.

Danube River Cruise and Conference Dinner

As one of the most beautiful historical capitals in Europe, Budapest sits on the Danube and from here much of the city's lovely surroundings can be appreciated. The conference dinner will take place during a cruise down the River Danube on Tuesday evening, 11 April. Coaches will depart from the conference venue at 19:00, and return to the hotels at approximately 22:30. Your registration pack includes a dinner ticket and you must remember to bring your dinner ticket with you to board the boat. Additional tickets for accompanying persons may be available from the conference registration desk but it would significantly help the organisers to manage numbers if any tickets not being used could be returned to the Conference Desk. Please advise in advance of any special dietary requirements.
